Youngster Makes Painful Recovery, Hopes for Normal Life With Chest Aid

Cheerful and lively as a cricket, Darrow Davison, of Torrance, eight year old, gets around all day at play and sleeps at night with his hips tightly bound to be immovable, and his feet constantly stretched 36 inches apart by a rigid steel brace. Darrow make no complaint but waits cheerfully for the day when the steel will be removed and he will walk again "good as new".

He was a normal happy, active little boy until just about a year ago when a swing gave way and he had a jolting fall. His parents noticed that he limped after this. As his limp became more pronounced they took him to their personal physician.

X-rays disclosed a condition only recently recognized and called Legg-Calve-Perthes disease from the names of the doctors who first diagnosed this very unusual bone disease occurring usually in children under 12 years. The bones in the hip joints were softening and wearing against each other in the socket. Without proper treatment, permanent injury is done and the child is sentenced to life as a crippled invalid.

Such a diagnosis was a crushing blow to the Davisons, loving parents of an only child. It happened almost a year ago at the peak of the recession in Southern California when the father was without work. That this can be a story with a happy ending is because Darrow is one of the 1658 children in Harbor Area who have been served this last year at Orthopaedic or Children's Hospital, two of the 167 Red Feather agencies which receive support from the Community Chest. Orthopaedic Hospital is one of the few places in the United States with experience in coping with this comparatively rare disease.

Everything needful for Darrow's treatment was done there. Placed first in a restricting cast from shoulder to heels so that bones would no longer rub against each other, he was allowed to move only his head and arms.

Nine weeks in this cast was a long time for an active seven-going-on-eight year old. But Darrow had been counting birthdays until he could become a Boy Scout, and the promise that first the cast and later the brace would make him well enough for the normal activities of Scouting made it all endurable.

Today, with the steel stretchers between his feet night and day, he is able to move awkwardly and with a rocking motion, but with amazing rapidity. Also he is back to school, doing well in the third grade at the Harlan Shoemaker school in San Pedro, where with other physically handicapped children he is sheltered from possible accidents.

Man Claims He Was Kidnaped

Police this week investigated the claims of a Torrance resident who said he was abducted on a downtown street Saturday night, and forced to drive his kidnaper to San Diego.

George Leroy Norman, of 1912 Arlington Ave., told detectives that a man was crouched in the backseat of his car when he returned from making a purchase at a store at Andree and Carson Sts., and ordered him to drive him to Mexico.

Torrance police were notified of the alleged kidnaping by San Diego police to whom Norman told his story.

Three Initiated Into Moose Lodge

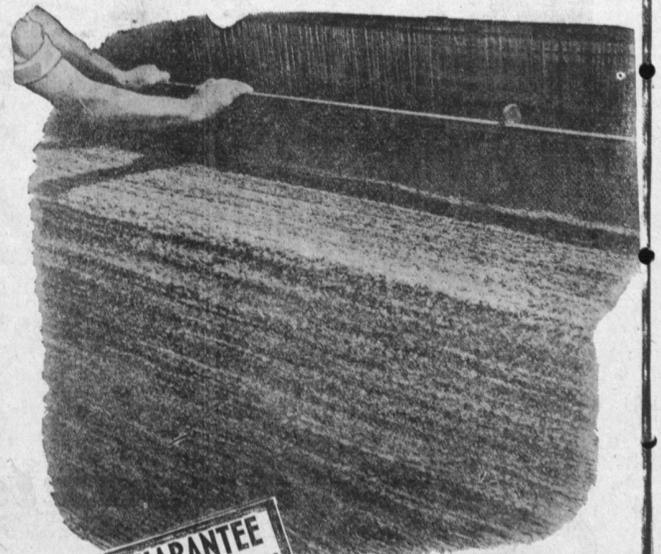

James A. Evans, secretary of the Torrance Moose Lodge announced this week the initiation of Norval L. DeWeese, John Yurkovich and J. J. Tur, M.D., as members of the Loyal Order of Moose fraternity in ceremonies conducted at the lodge hall.

The initiation program was under the direction of Edward Price, chairman of the Torrance ritual committee. A guest ritual team from the San Pedro Moose lodge conducted the membership ceremonies.
